Anything else your practitioner should know about your health?

What you agree to

What to expect

Wood therapy is a massage with shaped wooden tools, such as rollers, cups and contoured boards, moved over the skin with oil or cream. The pressure can be strong. I'll tell my practitioner if it hurts, and they'll lighten it or stop.

Initials

Risks

Redness, tenderness and bruising can follow a session, especially the first ones, and can last several days. I'll contact the studio about anything unusual, and my doctor for a medical concern.

Initials

After surgery

If I've had surgery on an area, the studio may ask for my doctor's written OK before working on it, and may skip that area.

Initials

Implants and devices

I told the studio about every implanted device, implant and piece of metal in my body. I understand the studio may skip a treatment or an area because of one.

Initials

No promises

Wood therapy is a cosmetic service, not medical care, and it doesn't take the place of a doctor's advice. The studio makes no promise about how my body will look or measure after any number of sessions, and how people respond varies.

Initials

My answers

I answered the health questions truthfully. I'll tell my practitioner before my appointment if anything changes.

Initials

Stopping

I can ask my practitioner to stop at any time, and my practitioner may stop or change the service if my skin reacts.

Appointment policy

Please give the studio at least 24 hours' notice to move or cancel your appointment. Arriving late may shorten your appointment so the next client starts on time.

Initials

the studio uses your health answers only to do your appointment safely and to keep the records the law requires. They are never used for marketing or sold. They are stored encrypted, and every time someone at the studio opens them it is logged.
